• Foundation Horsemanship

In the Morning Foundation class, Lee will present the concepts of what she considers to be natural in horsemanship; using what is naturally happening to teach. She will help riders learn more about developing feel, timing and balance on the ground and in the saddle. An introduction to riding with cadence and rhythm will be covered in depth. This class will suit new riders, nervous riders, and green or troubled horses.

• Advanced Horsemanship

The afternoon class will be an Advanced class. There will be no groundwork in this class, as it is designed for the confident rider, comfortable at all gaits.

The riders in either class are welcomed and encouraged to watch the other class at no additional charge, making for a full day of educational enlightenment. Lee truly believes this format will allow her to present the material most appropriate to the level of the participants, thus helping them raise their understanding and abilities at a faster pace. For the long-time student of horsemanship, watching the Foundation class will be a great refresher; and for the new student, the opportunity to observe the Advanced class will give them a clearer picture of where the Foundation will take them and the importance of a great start. She also wants to make it clear that both classes are open to the Advanced rider.

If the refresher you seek would suit you better with horse in hand, or you have a green or troubled horse, the additional class fee will apply. Both of the classes are progressive. This is a 3 day clinic, Saturday through Monday.

Accommodations:

RV Electric hook-ups and dry camping are available. Hotels and restaurants are available in Albuquerque 30-45 min away. Meals packages are available, but otherwise are the responsibility of the rider.

Host reserves the right to cancel the clinic if minimum participation requirements are not met.

We will ride rain or shine and will be riding in an arena all three days but may ride in both the indoor and outdoor arenas.

Negative Coggins will be required on all horses entering the facility.
